

ABSTARCT OF DISCLOSURE

A video data recording apparatus detects a change in an attribute of a signal input with video data, generates management information showing a position in which the change was detected, and records the management information to a recording medium. The video data playback apparatus reads and plays back the video data up to the position shown in the management information recorded on the recording medium.